

I encourage disobedience to an abuse which is unconstitutional by law, lets tap the electric meter, enough of the constant rise of its price.

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

Caspaña 19/12/2013 | 21:06

"Caspaña", the land of wheeling and dealing, where solar, thermal and wind energy could meet nearly all of the household energy consumption, but evidently those thieves of the electricity companies manage to bribe the politicians so as to not pass laws that would allow these clean and cheap energy sources. As long as we don't fire these crooks, we won't get anywhere!

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

Where can we present charges? 19/12/2013 | 21:02

Where can we anonymously inform on the thousands of users who tapped their electricity meter with a needle? I know more than one of them. We are paying for the electricity that the scammers aren't paying!

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

Useless 19/12/2013 | 21:05

There's nothing to be done. We all know that politicians, once retired, and up on the board of a large electrical, petrol, phone or financial company. This way they make sure to get a huge pension. The only solution is getting rid of this gang of incompetent thieves.

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

The UNIONS 19/12/2013 | 21:30

I don't think they'll cut their electricity, so they are comfortably warm on winter, and cool on summer...

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

Javier 19/12/2013 | 21:35

A MILLION of families have been CUT OFF the POWER THIS YEAR. Congratulations dear politicians!

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

Mig 19/12/2013 | 21:40

Why gotta turn on the heating, it's because you don't make warm enough. 20 years ago or 30 years ago, many people had heating. I guess that was the secret to success...

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

David 19/12/2013 | 21:45

I see a lot of people who are not in a hurry to...

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

as the salaries of the expresidentes who just warm the chairs on the boards don't go down either, since they have to keep warm their chair on the board, the product price will go up until we all stop heating, this is the advantage of an absolute majority

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

NOO 19/12/2013 | 22:05

I insist: people should be out on the streets, which should be on fire. When there's nothing to lose, there's nothing to fear, you fools!

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

Maya the Bee 19/12/2013 | 22:10

And let's burn the politicians in these fires! So we won't be cold.

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

The Deluded 19/12/2013 | 22:30

The politicians won't read those comments, so why post them.

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

xss 19/12/2013 | 22:35

People should just STOP paying any more bills. There's nothing else, but civil disobedience,...

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

Shame 19/12/2013 | 22:56

And Felipe Gonzalez with the pharmaceutical companies ... NO ONE IS SPARED.

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

Attention! 19/12/2013 | 22:58

Oil heaters are very efficient and cheap. The basic 3-tier models spend 500w, 1000w or 1500w with the thermostat turned up to the maximum - but only at specific moments in order to keep the oil hot and then it turns itself off! As a result you can turn them on just a little in every room and you won't notice it in your bill. Its consumption is comparable to a light bulb. Regular resistance heaters should be prohibited as they consume from 2000w up to 6000w, while they are on - as much as 20 or 60 light bulbs would.

REPLY LIKE DISLIKE

ENOUGH 19/12/2013 | 23:06

I feel a great indignation about these news: There's no law saying that everything can be manipulated by people, who don't deserve the slightest respect, who are not ashamed, one can't be so evil. NO for god's sake NO.

COPY AND DISTRIBUTE

EL PRESSENTIMENT

N. 36
www.elpresentiment.net
12.05.2014

There, in front, is a series of luxury buildings the way comes from a common wall (purchased it from 100m below ground level). But is so clear that its common to the bar