

SOW YOUR ZAD

Long live the inextricability of life in the living! Long life to all ZAD in the world that have always existed, exist and will ever exist – no matter if some might not know about them, no matter if some might not want them (Gaelle, Sunday 15 April 2018).

The ZAD, “Zone To Defend”, is a territory of about 200 hectares in the area of Notre-Dame-des-Landes (Nantes). For the last few years, as a result of the fight against the construction of an airport, it has become autonomous – meaning it is not controlled by the State. The ZAD resists and even managed to get the airport project withdrawn. However, in April the ZAD has been militarily attacked by the State, which will not allow the existence of a territory that escapes its rule.
